Basketball wins opener

By Glenn Brewster

In one of the most exciting MIT basketball games in recent years, the Engineers opened up their 1974-1975 season with an 85-64 win over Acadia at Rockwell Cage. Acadia, coming off successive losses to BU and Harvard Friday and Saturday night, appeared determined to pick up one win on its Boston trip, but the Engineers thwarted the Axemen's hopes Sunday night with excellent outside shooting and strong defense. Cam Lange '76 had a hot night for MIT, shooting 13 for 22 from the floor (all outside shots) and scoring 34 points. Peter Jackson '76 appeared to have lost none of his playing ability despite his off season knee operation. Picking up 20 points and 11 rebounds, Captain Al Epstein '75 added 12 points and nine assists for the Engineers. The Engineers played probably their most cohesive game in the past two years, as MIT's defense, although giving up 84 points, remained tight and allowed Acadia very few good shots.

Delta Upsilon held off a pesky Baker House team for an exciting 54-52 decision 10 round out the other action of the A-leagues. Delta Tau Delta won its fourth in a row, blitzing MacGregor 'Z' 63-30 and Chemical Engineering 46-23. Paul Robert- shote '76 paced the Delts with 24 points total for the two games. The Black Student Union upset Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 35-28, to move the Delts into first place in A2-league. In other action, FIJI won two of three to up its record to 4-0 by edging the Burton 4 Smokers, 69-54, in two overtime, crushing the Little Green Men, 55-40, and losing to the Macks. Jim Kirschner '75 was in double figures in both games for the FIJI. This week's play includes TED vs. LCA and The Macks vs. DU.

Basketball third in tournament

By Thea Willecke

After finishing the regular season with a 6-0 record, the MIT women's intercollegiate volleyball team ended its 1974 play by participating in the Boston Area Invitational Women's Volleyball Tournament on November 23. In its first year of existence, the team managed to take third place in this event.

Besides MIT, other schools invited to play in the tournament were Boston College, Regis, Salem State, Boston University, MIT's Northeastern, Northeastern State, and Eastern Nazarene. MIT had previously beaten two of those colleges, BC and Salem State.

The action above is from last week's showdown between two undefeated A-league teams, The Macks and defending champions FIJI, in which The Macks established itself as the team to beat this year with a 40-20 win.
