Duly Noted

OVERLAND THROUGH ASIA: An Underground Guide

by Paul Dowsey-Magog

Glade Publications, 155pp, $4.95

Overland travel through Asia is a reality. With the aid of a good map and guide, one can travel at a fast pace. If you choose to go on your own adventure, you can experience the thrill of spontaneous travel. The Silk Road, with its ancient trade routes, is a great place to start.

Fear of Flying

by Eric Jong

New American Library, 311pp, $1.95

Eric Jong's second novel is a diatribe against the air travel industry. The protagonist, a successful novelist, is terrified of flying and decides to take a bus instead. However, he soon realizes that the bus is just as dangerous as the plane.

Fear of the Energy Balloon

by Stewart Udall, Charles Genoni, David Ostrohert

McGraw-Hill, 258 pp, $7.95

In their book, the authors discuss the environmental impact of using nuclear energy. They argue that nuclear power is not a viable solution to the energy crisis and that we should focus on alternative sources of energy.

Overland through Asia

by Paul Dowsey-Magog

Glade Publications, 155pp, $4.95

The Silk Road is a fascinating route for overland travelers. It was an important trade route connecting China and the Mediterranean world. The book provides detailed information on the history and culture of the countries along the route.

Rescue Squad

by William Morrow & Co., 44pp, $7.95

The book is about a group of firefighters who save a young girl from a burning house. The author, William Morrow, has been a firefighter for many years and has written about the experiences of firefighters.

RESCUE SQUAD

OVERLAND THROUGH ASIA: An Underground Guide

by Paul Dowsey-Magog

Glade Publications, 155pp, $4.95

Overland travel through Asia is a reality. With the aid of a good map and guide, one can travel at a fast pace. If you choose to go on your own adventure, you can experience the thrill of spontaneous travel. The Silk Road, with its ancient trade routes, is a great place to start.

Fear of Flying

by Eric Jong

New American Library, 311pp, $1.95

Eric Jong's second novel is a diatribe against the air travel industry. The protagonist, a successful novelist, is terrified of flying and decides to take a bus instead. However, he soon realizes that the bus is just as dangerous as the plane.

Fear of the Energy Balloon

by Stewart Udall, Charles Genoni, David Ostrohert

McGraw-Hill, 258 pp, $7.95

In their book, the authors discuss the environmental impact of using nuclear energy. They argue that nuclear power is not a viable solution to the energy crisis and that we should focus on alternative sources of energy.

Overland through Asia

by Paul Dowsey-Magog

Glade Publications, 155pp, $4.95

The Silk Road is a fascinating route for overland travelers. It was an important trade route connecting China and the Mediterranean world. The book provides detailed information on the history and culture of the countries along the route.

Rescue Squad

by William Morrow & Co., 44pp, $7.95

The book is about a group of firefighters who save a young girl from a burning house. The author, William Morrow, has been a firefighter for many years and has written about the experiences of firefighters.