Docu-Drama

"The Nixon Tapes" a documentary drama (or docu-drama) produced by Boston-area film makers Web Lithgow (left) and Tom McCann (below, with no coat) was shown and discussed recently at an IAP seminar. Visiting Lecturer Edwin Diamond of Political Science (right) arranged the showing and led the discussion, which included the comments of Prof. Bruce Mazlish, MIT political scientist and author of in Search of Nixon a psycho-historical examination of the former president.

The 90-minute docu-drama was produced on videotape for television. Lithgow and McCann said all three American television networks have rejected it because of their rule against using any journalistic program they did not produce themselves. It has been shown on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. television network, on WNAC in Boston, WNET in New York and a Denver station.
