Sailors win at MIT:

By Chris Donnelly '77

The varsity sailing team opened its spring season successfully last weekend, winning one regatta and placing second in another.

Last Saturday, sailing in Larks with a manmull and jib against nine other schools, MIT finished second to Bowdoin. Eight in five races, Bill Critch '77 and Sally Huested co-skippers (mainsail) co-skippers Marty Lurie '78 and Bill Gough '76 also placed first.

The varsity will compete for the Owen Trophy at Penn this weekend while the freshwater competes at Harvard. The women's team opens its season tomorrow in the Regatta Bowl at MacGregor. In light, windy winds, MIT finished a disappointing 12th of 14 schools. Sailing for MIT were skippers Paul Eriq '78 and Chuck Tucker '75 with crews Steve Goodyear '77 and John Avriols '78.

The freshman team opened its season Sunday with a win over six schools in a regatta held at MIT. Sailing in Tech Dinghies, (dinghies are boats with only a mainsail) co-skippers Wally Corwin '78 and Spahr Webb '78 won A-Division. In B-Division, co-skippers Marty Lurie '78 and Bill Gough '76 also placed first.

Track hopes to improve mark

By Dave Dobos

With eight returning lettermen, the MIT varsity outdoor track team hopes for a much improved season this spring. Although it may be difficult to significantly better last year's disappoointing 1-5 record, optimism prevails for fine performances by many of the athletes.

The Engineer cinderellas should substantially reduce their 1974 losing margins against most of their rivals. Because New Hampshire, Bates, Bowdoin, and Coast Guard are powerful again the chances of upset are small. However, MIT defeated both Tufts and WPI during the indoor season and stands a strong chance of repeating the feat outdoors.

Coach Gary Wilkes '75 and Jeff Baerstman '76 will be two of the main sparkplugs this season. The versatile Wilkes, who sprints, long jumps, and throws the shot put, and the powerful Baerstman are heavy for the Engineers. Now that Baerstman has recovered from the heel injury that sidelined him during the indoor season, he should chop a number of seconds off his 4:19 mile time of last year.

Also quite diverse in his abilities is Junior Greg Hunter, last year's second highest point scorer. Hunter will do well in the high hurdles and shot put, and hopes to qualify for the Division III nationals in his specialty, the javelin. Distance man Frank Richardson '77, also of Division III nationals quality, is back after not competing during the indoor season. He should be a consistent two-mile winner.

Hopes are high for sophomore Rich Okere, leading scorer indoors, in both the high and intermediate hurdles and sprints. Discus thrower Dave Grasso '75 will be aiming for a 150-foot toss and pole valet Jim Williams '77 a 13-foot vault. Paul Karchman '77, long and triple jumper and sprinter, will add to the depth of this year's team.

Other athletes who should fare well for MIT are distance men John Kroelewski '77, Jack Reeves '77, Steve Keith '77, and Chuck Tucker '77.

Frank Fuller '77, of MIT's varsity tennis team, hits a backhand to his UConn opponent in an intercollegiate match held Wednesday afternoon at Briggs Field. The Engineer netmen defeated the Huskies, 5-1, to register their first northern win and second overall this season.
