Food show to begin tomorrow

By Stephen Blatt

From the people who brought us "Weather," "Astronomy," and "Building," the "Food" show is being offered in the Building lobby seven days a week.

The exhibit, which will open tomorrow and remain until April 18, will contain programs of foods, a multimedia exhibit, and special events for each day of the show.

Designed by Otto Piene, director of the Center for Advanced Visual Studies, Suzanne Weinberg, Lobby Coordinator, and Ernst Patzer, of the Department of Nutrition and Food Science, the show explores various aspects of food activity--including the popular and whimsical as well as the scientific, artistic and educational.

Large-scale models of foods to be shown include "The Big Apple" and "The Big Cheese." Special events planned include "Tanner Sounds" of digestion each day at lunchtime, dances and literary readings, and the MIT Logarithmics. Also scheduled is an appearance by Julia Child, public television's "French Chef," on April 18, and a special program for April 17, which is National Food Day.

Previous full-scale programs in Lobby 7 in recent years have included shows on the theater, a visual design exhibit and a "cropet" of hallucines. The most popular exhibit, a staircase which ran from the floor of the lobby to the third floor of Building Seven, was taken down two years ago.
