East Boston planning revised unused elementary school be used to house the new technical high school. Garrity accepted the first part, but decided to use Barnes as the high school instead.

Under yesterday's order, Barnes will house four grades - 7 through 10 - next year, with 160 students in each grade. As in the original order, 25 percent of the students must reside in East Boston's District 8. Over the next two years, two more classes of 160 will be admitted to the East Boston Technical School, bringing it to full capacity of 960 students in grades 7 through 12 by September, 1978.

East Boston High will remain a District 8 high school next year, and will be desegregated like any other district school, Garrity ruled. Subject to appeal, the school will continue to serve "in whole or in part" as a district school beyond next year.

Both Russell and attorney Eric Van Loon, counsel for the black plaintiffs in Boston's desegregation suit, said that the East Boston protests over plans to change the school in January were not direct causes of the Phase II modification. "It would be foolish to try to read Judge Garrity's mind, but in our view the community actions had no effect whatsoever," Van Loon told The Tech. "We've known since January that there will be a shortage of magnet-school seats, and all parties agreed that we couldn't do anything but leave East Boston as it is for another year.
