Police Blotter

(The Police Blotter is a reporter's diary of crimes, incidents, and actions on the MIT campus each week.)

Library thief nets wallets

Two students studying in the Hayden Library Wednesday afternoon noticed the loss of their wallets to an unknown thief or thieves. In both cases the women were sitting at tables with their handbags hung on the back of their chairs. They discovered the wallets missing as they made ready to leave. Both lost ID's and other personal papers. One lost about $15; the other lost $100.

Two new cars stolen

Two new cars, one a '76 Pontiac, the other a '76 Buick, were stolen from the area within the past week. The former was taken from the river side of Campus area residence. Two new cars stolen two students studying in the

Intruders

At times people return to their rooms, offices, etc., and find a stranger inside. The stranger usually has a "cover" story, such as looking for employment, or trying to find some person. Regardless of the story, proceed, take close notice of the intruder's appearance, age, height, weight and clothing and notify the Campus Patrol as soon as safety allows. Do not forcibly confront intruders, but pursue them when - then notify the Campus Patrol immediately.

Valuable greenery stolen

Potted trees and plants, valued at approximately $50, were stolen from their beds at an East Campus area residence. Taken in the weekend theft were some rare pieces, including a three foot high orange sapling.
