Women's fencing wins twice

Jeanette M. Wing

The MIT women's fencing team (3-5) scored two more victories last week, defeating Concord-Carlisle and Dartmouth College.

The meet against Concord-Carlisle, held at MIT, was always leading or trailing until the last bout, when Prettmann clinched the lop-sided 11-5 victory for the team's fourth victory.

The meet against Dartmouth was extremely close and decided only by the last bout fenced by Karen Kaufman. Although MIT lost this last bout, Kaufman had brought the touch score to tie before losing. With the final bout scored tied at 8-8, the meet was decided using the total number of touches received by each team and MIT won 59-62.

At the beginning of the meet, MIT was well ahead 7-3, but Dartmouth quickly caught up putting all the pressure on the host. Austin won three bouts: Prettmann and Wing two each; Nelson, one.

The next meet is at duPont on Wednesday, February 2 at 7:00 against URI.
