Burton votes in dispute; Dormcon election voided

By Nina Pet

The meeting of the Dormcon Council, Dormcon, refused to ratify the election of their office. As a result, they will hold a new election for Dormcon Chairman, Dormcon Secretary, and Chairman of the Reserves. The meeting was attended by a large number of individuals who were interested in the outcome of the contest.

On the day after the election as Undergraduate Association President, a motion was made to disqualify the vote. David B. Koren of The Tech and some of his supporters have been trying to have the vote disallowed. The motion was passed by a large margin, with the following vote: yes 20; no 10;弃权 0. The motion to disqualify the vote was then made and seconded. The motion was passed by a large margin, with the following vote: yes 20; no 10;弃权 0.

The Tech: What do you think about being UAP?

A student who voted for the motion said, "Congratulations." I'll resign. The tide of UAP itself is no big deal, he said.

We want to thank all the people who helped us, a lot of people. MIT can be a fun, friendly environment to be in. People give up a lot to do this, people are powerful, and for the faculty to say they're too busy. It's about the faculty, students, admin-istration, and employees. We're here to try to be the best, to stay number one, but number one what? It's an educational institution; it's certainly an institution, but what comprises an education?

Two books that are about MIT are The Hidden Curriculum by Ben Snyder and At the Edge of Humanity by William Thompson. I think they're necessary to read to understand what's going on here. I'll have them available for borrowing from the LA Office.
