Wellesley show satirizes Harvard

By H. G. Fiorentini

The Wellesley Junior Show is an annual comedy production, usually highlighting a particular event at Wellesley College. The show has a special significance to those associated with the Wellesley community, and has a strong atmosphere of tradition.

All aspects of the performance are executed exclusively by the members of the Junior class. Although all talent comes from only one year of students, the Junior Show has set in stone away a disappointed audience. It always goes without saying that the show is usually "standing room only" by curtain time.

The show's title is kept a secret until the day of performance, but this year's show is titled "Luck of the Irish." The production is scheduled to run for four nights, with performances at Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings.
