1913: Cambridge is new home for a second MIT

(Continued from page 7)

tion. New York alumni arrived on the SS Bunker Hill on June 12, and were greeted by a 21-gun salute and a special issue of The Tech. With other alumni, they marched behind the MIT band to Copples Square. After a farewell ceremony at the old Rogers building, the alumni traveled by steamship to Nantasket for an outing and parade which was led by a huge papier-mâché beaver.

That evening, a crowd of over 10,000 gathered in the Great Court and watched the Institute Seal, enclosed in a chest, carried across the river in a replica of a Venetian barge. Then Professor R.A. Cram, an architect, presented an original pageant, entitled "The Masque of Power," in which he played Merlin, before the figure of Alma Mater, to lead before her the forces of civilization who had since conquered Nature.

The formal dedication was the next afternoon and President Macaulay acknowledged the then anonymous gift of George Eastman which made the new construction possible. That evening there was a white tie alumni dinner at Symphony Hall. Speakers included Orville Wright and Alexander Graham Bell, and guests included T. Coleman Du Pont '01, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, and Franklin D. Roosevelt (then Secretary of the Navy). The celebration closed with a broadcast to 34 cities, via Bell's telephone, of the alumni joined together singing the Star Spangled Banner.

Next Page at MIT in the Roaring Twenties.

Very involved construction techniques were used in the erection of the Great Dome when MIT moved to Cambridge at the turn of the century.

NEW RESPONSES TO OLD QUESTIONS IN RELIGION

A series of five sermons from a perspective of the folk theology emerging from the concept and information of the sciences.

Oct. 30 "Man - The Unfinished Animal" by Dr. John Rustin Clark, interim minister, a series of five sermons from a perspective of the folk theology emerging from the concept and information of the sciences.

Nov. 6 "Truth - The Search for Hidden Reality" by Dr. John Rustin Clark, interim minister, author of The Great Living System, Religion Emerging from the Sciences.

Nov. 13 "Earth - the Body of God" by Dr. John Rustin Clark, interim minister, author of The Great Living System, Religion Emerging from the Sciences.

Nov. 20 "Ethics - The Knowledge of Good and Evil" by Dr. John Rustin Clark, interim minister, author of The Great Living System, Religion Emerging from the Sciences.

Lilia's Restaurant
798 Main Street
Breakfast Special:
2 Eggs, Toast, Bacon or Ham $1.50
Lunch Special: (changes daily)
Open Saturday 7:00 A.M.
Make it all better
Having a Party? Call 351-8894.

Make it all better
Give blood

Senior Yearbook Portraits
$3 Sitting Fee
(Waived if you buy a Technique 1978)

GET SHOT OR ELSE...
MON. - THUR.
9 am - 5 pm

CALL x5-9167
FOR APPT.