To the Editor: Thank you for the article "MIT advising system under investigation" which appeared in The Tech's edition on Tuesday. I was confounded with the MIT community about the Faculty's plan to study undergraduate advising and counseling.

The ad-hoc faculty committee was advising, as would like to solicit wishes comments on any aspects of advising and counseling at MIT. These should be sent to the Chairperson of any one of the three faculty committees involved in the study: Prof. Robert Hulsizer (Committee on Edcucational Policy), NE40-410, or Prof. Sherry Turkle (Committee on Student Environment), 20D-112, or Prof. Thomas Greytak (Committee on Academic Performances, 13-2074. At a later time we will schedule an open meeting with members of the student body.

I would like to take this opportunity to correct an inaccuracy which was contained in Tuesday's article. Neither Prof. Hulsizer nor I have suggested, nor do we believe, that the upperclass advising program should be unified under one authority. I did mention to your reporter that it might be a good idea for the coordinators of upperclass advising from each department to meet together about once a term to discuss problems of mutual interest.

She refused ring in '76

To the Editor:

While basking in the golden California sunshine and pursuing my belovedly arrived copies of The Tech, I was confounded with the MIT community about the Faculty's plan to study undergraduate advising and counseling.

at MIT, I still very much resent being lumped and labeled as one of the upperclass members of past committees who found room in their consciences to accept the gifts. I hope this sets the record straight.

APO thanks all for Open House

To the Editor:

I wish to thank all the members of the MIT Community who helped make Open House '78 a success.

There are too many people who helped for me to list them all, but he News Office, the Office of the Dean For Student Affairs, the Chancellor's Office, Physical Plant, all the department staff who participated, and especially the students who helped, deserve special thanks.
