Thieves Hit Boathouse Lockers

The unlocked, unattended women’s locker room at Pioce Boathouse was the scene of several larcenies last week. While preparing for an early morning practice session several athletes left valuables on a locker room bench. When they returned shortly after 8am the items were found to be missing. A similar problem occurred recently at the neighboring BU Boathouse.

Auto Thieves Back in Strength

Auto thieves made their presence known at different parts of the campus in the week just passed. They were caught removing Institute equipment to the needs of patients or their families regarding any aspects of the medical care they receive here.

Lockers

The unlocked, unattended athletes left valuables on a locker room bench. When they returned shortly after 8am the items were found to be missing. A similar problem occurred recently at the neighboring BU Boathouse.

Auto Thieves Back in Strength

Auto thieves made their presence known at different parts of the campus in the week just passed. They were caught removing Institute equipment to the needs of patients or their families regarding any aspects of the medical care they receive here.

Mountaineering #6.

Mountaineering is an oral tradition. Over the years, it has been passed down from teacher to student, from mountain owner to customer. As a result, a folklore – a mythology, if you will – has formed around the mountains of BUSCH. You, being a student of mountaineering, no doubt wish to acquaint yourself with these truths and half-truths, these stories both accurate and apocryphal. A wise decision. And, as luck would have it, this ad is just the ticket.

One of mountaineering’s earliest legends is BENNINGTON, BOSTON/BARNES. Bennington is an amalgam of paper schemes, franchised dreams, dummy corporations and the dummage dream; him in clover for nigh on 20 fiscal years. Asked at the culmination of his career to reflect upon the secret of success, Bennington revealed his first rule: “Keep all your assets liquid.”

Another frequent subject of mountaineering lore is the wildlife. Numerous tales abound, but perhaps the most famous story is that of the 1075 Minute Mathematics Convention. All 7B proclivities, wires and befeaded genuises insisted an after hours expedition. It began harmlessly enough. But soon, the BUSCH moun taineers reached the Mohican Strip, a navy nightspot offering to highbrow hijinks. Before the evening was over, several of them were bending the elbow rules. Others were smoking big cigars and telling every woman in sight they were agents with an eye for figures, claiming, “I can make you a mathematical model, baby.” Talk about your wildlife!

But when looking for shore encouragement, W. D. Poole must rank in lore among the top mountaineers. Poole of saying “The road to truth goes through bad neighborhoods.” Poole enjoyed starting with danger and approached mountaineering as a test of survival skills. In his most famous challenge, Poole greeteded with 80 water-proof matches and a major credit card, parachuted into a remote area known as Cleveland. He was up to the task. Within 24 hours, Poole was back- ing under the hot sun of Arizona, downing the smooth, cold, refreshing mountains of BUSCH Beer and a credit to his colleagues and a colleague on credit.

What becomes a legend stays a legend.

That is (one) a matter of subjective judgment and (two) in a constant state of flux. Keep in mind legends are created every day. So when you flew your mountaineering muscles, be aware that theBarnes is up to the task. Within 24 hours, Poole was back- ing under the hot sun of Arizona, downing the smooth, cold, refreshing mountains of BUSCH Beer and a credit to his colleagues and a colleague on credit.

What becomes a legend stays a legend.

That is (one) a matter of subjective judgment and (two) in a constant state of flux. Keep in mind legends are created every day. So when you flew your mountaineering muscles, be aware that the