Some forty-odd students trekked down to Washington, DC for a glimpse at how the federal bureaucracy works. The group heard from all three branches of government, in addition to those indirectly involved in the political process. However, three solid days of seminars and working lunches sometimes took its toll on participants. (Photos by Joel West)