MIT involvement in S. Africa muted

ieri employment policies and an increase in the number of black supervisors and managers, have been endorsed by many American corporations. Activists in both South Africa and the US, however, have criticized the Sullivan Principles for failing to confront apartheid head-on and for ignoring the role US corporations play in "bolstering and buttressing the apartheid system" through the sale of computers, oil, motor vehicles, and other strategic technology to the police and military in South Africa.

MIT holds stock in all of the following companies. Each has shareholder resolutions pending to limit or stop trade with South Africa. These resolutions will be voted on at the companies' annual shareholder meetings on the dates shown.

April 11: Caterpillar Tractor
April 11: J.P. Morgan (Morgan Guaranty Trust)
April 24: Bank of America
April 25: Union Carbide
May 1: Standard Oil of California
May 3: Mobil
May 10: Ford Motor Co.
May 17: Exxon
May 26: General Motors
