East Germans fly over wall — Two East German families floted over the Berlin Wall to freedom in a homemade balloon Sunday. This was the second attempt made by the two couples. West German police were amazed that the 4.5 square foot platform stayed aloft with the eight people and said this was the first balloon crossing of the Wall.

Elephants cross the Alps — Ex-teacher Jack Wheller, two elephants and five other people crossed the Alps following the route of Hannibal’s march to Rome in the third century B.C.E. They arrived Sunday on the Italian side of the Clasper pass, proving that elephants can be marched across the Alps.

Reagan into Gator poll — Former California governor Ronald Reagan would draw 50 percent of the vote in the New Hampshire Republican primary, according to a poll sponsored by the Boston Globe. If former President Gerald Ford entered the primary, pollsters say he would win by a small margin.

Boston plans for papal Mass — In preparation for the Mass to be celebrated here by the Pope on the first of October, the Boston Common is being remodeled. Architect Antonio de Castro has designed an enormous cross-shaped platform measuring 76 by 56 feet. Decorated in red, white and gold this structure will include several different level platforms for the Pope and prelates as well as carpeting and canvas canopies which will peak 37 feet above the ground.
