Smoke, in open violation of the law, might place administration and the Campus Police feared that an implicitly encouraged students from participating in the Smoke.

The students were told by Captain Lyons that use of marijuana in public. Despite the prior publicity of the Smoke, the students felt that last Friday was no different from any other Friday; the Campus Police do not actively discourage marijuana smoking in the Court.

The new system was designed with a large enough capacity to handle the extra usage. Students felt that last Friday was no different from any other Friday; the Campus Police do not actively discourage marijuana smoking in the Court.

The new dormline system is expected to cost between $20-30,000 for incoming calls, a labor and machinery costs.

The new dialing system was installed in part by MIT Dormline and in part by Greg Smith, a former dormline employee. The actual installation of the new system will be shared by dormline and New England Telephone (NET).

The new system will also not affect dormline part of dormiline service will be included in next fall's room rents.

We're shooting for August 22," said Dennis Baron, Technical Manager of Telecommunication Systems at MIT. Baron went on to say that the new system will be shared by dormline and New England Telephone (NET).

"We're shooting for August 22," said Dennis Baron, Technical Manager of Telecommunication Systems at MIT. Baron went on to say that the new system will be shared by dormline and New England Telephone (NET).

The new system is expected to cost between $20-30,000 for incoming calls, a trade-off is expected between labor and machinery costs.

A surcharge for the improved service will be included in next fall's room rents. Baron expressed the price of dormline service next fall to increase from about $25 to about $27.

The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration.

New language program begun

By Sarah Boghman

In an effort to draw more students to concentrate in foreign languages-related areas, the Department of Humanities and Literatures has created a new concentration in Foreign Languages and Literatures.

"It's a very pragmatic program," said Margery Resnick, Associate Professor of Humanities and head of the Foreign Languages and Literatures section.

This new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

The new system was designed with a large enough capacity to handle the extra usage. Students felt that last Friday was no different from any other Friday; the Campus Police do not actively discourage marijuana smoking in the Court.

The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration.

New language program begun

By Sarah Boghman

In an effort to draw more students to concentrate in foreign languages-related areas, the Department of Humanities and Literatures has created a new concentration in Foreign Languages and Literatures.

"It's a very pragmatic program," said Margery Resnick, Associate Professor of Humanities and head of the Foreign Languages and Literatures section.

This new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."

Student wage proposals given final approval

By Jack Link

As announced in The Tech (May 6, 1980), first figures for the new student starting pay rates have been released by the Student Employment Office (SEO).

The new minimum wage will now take effect June 1 instead of July 1, said Murray Van der Welt, SEO Director.

"The previous foreign language concentration, consisting of a four-hour and two higher level courses, will remain as will the three-subject Literature in Translation concentration." The new concentration will allow students to concentrate in a foreign language-related area or to participate in the international component and goals of MIT.

"Language benefits professional training," remarked Resnick. "It fixes a person from the mind set of his own culture, to look at problems in a different way. It permits greater flexibility in employment opportunities. Language definitely lies in with the international component and goals of MIT."