Reagan sweeps into White House

Wiesner, Menand, Burnham comment on national sweep to right

By Sarah Bingman

"I am not frightened by what lies ahead and I don't think the American people are frightened by what lies ahead," said Ronald Reagan, the forty-fifth President of the United States, in his acceptance speech last night.

Reagan soundly defeated opponent Representative James J. Capitol and Senator John Anderson as he gathered up 50 percent of the popular vote to their 4-2 percent which funds.

"An election should be a popular vote necessary to receive matching federal cam-hastens. Anderson said, "quoting H.G.
