TUITION UP 19%

Twelfth consecutive raise is highest one ever

By Richard Salt

Next year’s tuition will be $7,400, an increase of $1,200 over this year’s $6,200 fee. This twelfth consecutive raise sets a new record for increases, with a 19 percent hike over the current figure.

The decision was made by the Executive Committee of the MIT Corporation, based on a recommendation supplied by the Academic Council, and was announced yesterday by President Paul Gray ’54. The student equity level and room and board fees have not yet been set.

The major reason for the large increase was the need to raise the salaries of Assistant Professors. Gray admitted that while it was impossible to make the salaries for such entry-level positions competitive with industry, MIT has fallen behind in the rates paid by some universities comparable to the Institute.

The average salary for an Assistant Professor at Harvard University last year was $20,800, according to Eric Kurtz of the Analytic Studies department at Harvard. Kurtz noted that this did not include the AAUP, was $16,100. The Medical School faculty. This
