Institute announces new policy on harassment

By Kenneth Snow

MIT's official policy concerning harassment was adopted May 18 by the Academic Council. The policy states: "Harassment of any kind is unacceptable at MIT for reasons of the policies and interests of the Institute." In May 1980, Rowe, Special Assistant to the President, explained: "We are putting down on paper what the Institute has always felt."

President Paul E. Gray '54 said "the policy is a direct response to the President, ex-hauding his own, and a true reflection of harassment other than sexual orientation, sexual preference.

As a meeting of the Faculty on May 29, Rowe said that the policy is a result of discussions over the past three years in which hundreds of MIT people par-

"The administration is concerned with any harassment. It is true that one or two cases last year had many more than one case."

Rowe noted, "The number of reported cases of sexual harassment as well as harassment because of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or sexual orientation has been fairly steady over the past year. However this is not the case."

Mitchel C. '78 said, "There will be no discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or sexual orientation."

Also the Institute's policy on conflicts of interest has been revised. Rowe said, "we want strongly to affirm the faculty recommendation that our most important concern in this area is to provide education, counsel, guidance and example to students without discrimination based on sex or race; indeed without distortion of any kind."

Rowe said that she is "hopeful that the policy will prevent cases of harassment and publicizing (the policy) will help."

The Admissions office expects a freshman class of 1050 this fall. This figure was announced by Director of Admissions Peter H. Richardson '48.

According to Richardson, the class of 1985 will consist of approximately 25 per cent women and 10 per cent minorities. Approximately 6 per cent will be black. 4 per cent will be foreign citizens and another 4 per cent will be foreign citizens with permanent US visa.

Richardson noted that these figures are still very tentative. As MIT experiences "summer melt," (loss of freshmen planning to attend MIT) more students must be taken off the waiting list. Therefore, the Admissions office cannot compile exact figures until the fall. Richardson noted that "student registration is to come at least within 20 of the desired number."

REFRESHER COURSE.

You've burned the midnight oil and cracked more books than you care to remember. The work is done. The papers are in. So now you need refresher course. The subject: ice cold Dos Equis beer. The Uncommon Import. Study a frosty glass. You'll learn it has a rich, amber color unlike any beer. Now test that big bold flavor. You've got to admit, Dos Equis is in a class all by itself.
