1 Polish Party leader replaced — Stanislaw Kanis, former head of the Polish Communist Party, resigned on Sunday. The Party’s Central Committee replaced Kanis with General Wojciech Jaruzelski, former Prime Minister and Defense Minister, and issued demands for stronger action on Poland’s failing economy and for a tougher line on Solidarity, the independent union. Kanis replaced the previous party leader, Edward Gierek, in September, 1980, at the height of labor unrest.

Socialist Party wins in Greece — The Panhellenic Socialist Movement, led by Andreas Papandreou, triumphed in parliamentary elections and ended 35 years of conservative, pro-western governments. Papandreou said, “we will not lead the country into any adventure.”

Cooking oil terrifies Spain — Over 160 people have died from, toxic cooking oil. The European Parliament voted to rapidly withdraw the contaminated products sold in Spain and the Common Market. Over 15,000 have consumed rapeseed oil intended for industrial use, and more than 800 are still hospitalized.

Nation
Over 1 million signatures to dump Watt — The Sierra Club and other environmental groups presented House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O’Neill with petitions calling for the resignation of Secretary of the Interior James Watt. Conservative groups leaked to the press a confidential Sierra Club memo describing methods to publicize the campaign demanding Watt’s resignation.

Reagan halves last budget cut proposal — Responding to Congressional pressure, the White House announced it will seek only $5.5 billion additional cuts in the 1982 fiscal budget, rather than $13 billion additional cuts as announced by President Reagan in a televised speech. Reagan said that the economy was in a "light" recession.

Research Geophysicist
Ph.D. level research of seismic data acquisition and interpretation to solve specific exploration problems in the search for oil and gas. A background in geology and geophysics is not expected and can be quickly learned on the job. Useful areas of knowledge include geometrical optics, wave propagation, Fourier transforms, digital filtering, computer programming and least squares modeling, a general interest in experimental physics and some familiarity with electronic equipment.

Those interested should send their resume, official transcripts of all college level work, and four technical references which can be contacted by phone to:

You got the best camera. You got the best film. Why didn’t you get the best pictures?

A good film lab can make all the difference between good pictures and disappointing ones.

Here at PhotoQuick, we do just that by custom printing your film. That means we inspect each and every negative by hand before it’s printed. And make corrections for color balance and density – corrections that must likely wouldn’t be made by a large processing lab with automatic equipment.

Try PhotoQuick for your next roll of film. We think you’ll be pleasantly surprised to find that we’re not only better, we’re faster!
