A Philosophy on Funding National/Ethnic Groups (for discussion only)

In general the national and ethnic groups at MIT have the following objectives:
1. to provide an organizational link for the members of their group.
2. to provide an institutional framework for communication and social interaction amongst their members.
3. to help assimilate new members to the Institute environment.
4. to inform and educate the Institute community of their culture and concerns.

Our mandate covers these groups, and we should assist them as we are able to.

We should, if necessary, subsidize the cost of maintaining an organization. We do not have to support anything more than a too-thin or skeletal organization. In general, the larger and more active a group wishes to be, the more it should be financially independent. Potential revenue sources vary according to the nature of the group we should remember that the mother of invention is per se while being blind to the harmful purposes to which science can be put. Most people, fortunately, are either inarticulate or just making up their minds. That’s how it ought to be.
