Britain proposes Falklands peace plan — The British has decided to propose a peace plan that would result in Argentina renouncing sovereignty over the Falkland Islands. British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym flew to Washington yesterday to confer with Secretary of State Alexander Haig. "It is important that they, not we, are generally seen as the obliged side, the branch that finally made war inevitable," said one member of Parliament describing the British plan.

Salvadoran rebels continue to receive weapons — Thomas O. Enders, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American affairs, said in a hearing before the House of Representatives that leftist guerrillas in El Salvador continued to receive arms from Nicaragua and Cuba. Cubans are using drug trafficking as a cover for shipping arms to Latin America, Enders claimed.

Israel jets bomb PLO vilages in Lebanon — Over twenty were reported killed in Israeli air strikes Wednesday in Lebanon; the bashing broke a one-month-old truce between Israel and the PLO. The air attack, which reportedly killed 23, followed a land mine explosion in southern Lebanon that killed one Israeli soldier and wounded another.

As Israeli spokesman claimed two Syrian jets trying to intercept the bombing raids, both MiG-23s, were shot down.

Fire in Anaheim leaves thousands homeless — A fire in Anaheim, California, Wednesday morning destroyed four blocks of apartments and left more than 1,000 people homeless. At least eight were injured in the blaze, which caused an estimated $50 million of damage. Fire officials speculated sparks from high voltage wires whipped by 70-mile-per-hour gusts ignited the fire.

Thousands support building a new Boston arena — Senator Paul E. Tsongas, Mayor Kevin H. White, and Celtics manager Red Auerbach $56.8 million, 16,000-seat sports arena to replace Boston Garden. The bill is co-sponsored by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn) and Senate President William M. Bulger (D-South Boston). The arena would be built next to Boston Garden, which would be demolished on completion of the new complex.
