(Continued from page 4) had I seriously considered whether I could afford to spend as much time working for this paper as I do on my classes, in addition to going out on weekends, I would have said, "No." Fortunately, I just went ahead and did it. As a result, I think I'm substantially more well-adjusted than several hundred people I know whose idea of a really exciting time is going over to the 24-Hour Coffeeshop for a frozen Milky Way bar. I'm not suggesting everyone should live like Hunter Thompson — merely that no one should live like the characters in Sinclair Lewis's Main Street.

Nowadays, most of those who yell "Sport Death!" as an outcry against all that is gray, lifeless, and conformist don't realize it was first an appellation. But that's alright. Sport Death would have wanted it that way.

Managers notes "Muddy" hours

To the Editor:

I am a Muddy Charles Pub provide and has provided for years, an important service to the MIT community. In a recent story [Feb. 11], some implications concerning the Muddy's hours could cause serious harm to our efforts to maintain a comfortable, enjoyable pub environment at the lowest possible prices.

The pub is open Monday through Wednesday from 11:30am to 2pm and from 4pm to 9pm; Thursday from 11:30am to 2pm and from 4pm to 10pm; and Friday from 11:30am to 10pm.

Insofar as many of our early work shifts are supported by our business on Thursday and Friday nights, I trust you will understand my concern in making public our evening availability. Thank you for your cooperation.

Join me at the "Muddy" for beer, Friday night.
