Writing class enrollment up as frost face requirement

(Continued from page 1)

The expository writing program formerly offered two subjects, but this year replaced them with three subjects and 10 sections, Paradis said.

Paradis, who graded 25 freshman writing evaluations, said he does not think he graded harder because the requirement was in effect, "I sort of have a way" of grading, he said, "I've done enough of it."

"My sense is that people would grade easier," he said. The increase in the number of freshmen failing the examination "would have to do with who precisely is doing the grading."

The Student Accounts Office has announced that the hours for student services on loans will be 9am to 4pm, Monday through Friday. The Student Accounts Office hours will continue to be 9am to 4pm, Monday through Friday.

Fees for student transcripts will no longer be accepted at the Bursar's Office. All transcript fees must be paid at the Cashier's Office, 10-180.

The MIT U.H.F. Repeater Association offers radio communications assistance to any MIT event free of charge. If you or your group are interested, contact Richard D. Thomas, room W20-401, or call 354-8262 for details.

The 23rd edition of The Library of Congress Holdings, dates, call numbers, and title changes (published semiannually) of approximately 20,000 titles includes information on holdings, dates, call numbers, and title changes. The 23rd edition contains 675 new titles (480 alterations). Prepayment is required. The price is $10.00; for MIT staff and students, $3.00. To order send check payable to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to Office of the Director, Room 4-198, MIT Libraries, Cambridge, MA 02139.

An informational meeting for students interested in medicine will be offered on Mon., Oct. 3, at 4pm, in room 12-182. Topics include: pre-med requirements, clinical experience, pre-med advisor selection, and more. Contact Jeanette Gerzon in the Office of Career Services, x3-4373.

Students should be aware of a new procedure for fulfilling the humanities distribution requirement. While the requirement itself is the same, students must now complete a proposal during the sophomore year, and have a completion form signed by a field advisor when the requirement is completed. Completion forms are available from department or program headquarters; in particular, juniors and seniors are urged to attend to this procedure. Contact the Humanities Undergraduate Office for more information, x3-4447.

The annual Harry S. Truman Scholarship Awards will be made to current sophomores. The awards will be for $3,000 and are renewable for the senior year and for up to two years of graduate study. Two MIT students will be nominated by the Institute. Any student wishing to be considered should contact Dr. Louis Men-