Foul weather hinders search for MIT student

(Continued from page 1)

what the chances are of finding him," said Lt. Brian Howe, the N.H. Fish and Game officer in charge of the search. "If he stayed dry the first night, he was dressed warmly enough that he could survive if found some shelter and stayed warm." Miller's two companions on the hike were Lou V. Giordano, 26, a member of the research staff at MIT's Department of Psychology, and Nige Ribotto of Walthrop.

(Continued from page 1)

anything worse not.

The weather yesterday was very harsh — the temperature on the mountain was -15 degrees Fahrenheit with wind chill and over five inches of snow fell — reducing Miller's chances for survival. Conditions are expected to worsen until Sunday.

Hypothermia is largest concern

Nearest to the B-School

HARVARD BUSINESS SCHOOL
MBA PROGRAM

An Admissions Representative from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration will be on campus

11/7 to meet with students interested in the two-year MBA Program

Contact the Career Planning and Placement Center for more details and to sign up for an information session.

Harvard Business School is committed to the principle of equal educational opportunity.