MIT pistol squad sweeps sectionals

By Len Rafuse

The MIT pistol team swept the New England Collegiate Pistol Sectionals, held at MIT this weekend. The MIT team competed with the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Norwich University, and the US Coast Guard Academy for the sectional titles.

In free pistol, the MIT Gray and Maroon teams finished first and second with scores of 2012 and 1979, respectively. The first team was Dave Martin '84, Will Johnson '85, Roberto Lautaro '85, and Larry Deschaine '84. Jerry Martin '86 led the Maroon team. Dave McCormack of Norwich won the individual competition with Dave Martin in second and Johnson in third. Norwich, a new team in the sport, took second place with a 1410.

Nothing Else Feels Like Navy Flying.

The thunderous roar of jet engines rolls across the carrier's flight deck.

Throttles are at full power, and you're waiting for the signal to launch.

Now. The catapult fires. G forces press you back into your seat. Suddenly, you're flying low and fast over the open sea. Zero to 150 in 2.5 seconds.

Nothing else feels like Navy flying. Nothing.

And when you become a pilot or flight officer you're at the very heart of it.

Once you've earned your wings, the Navy pays you in full control of a multi-million-dollar supersophisticated combination of jet aircraft and electronic wizardry.

And Navy training makes sure you're up to the challenge. Rigorous flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

Leadership and professional schooling prepare you for the immediate decision-making authority and management responsibility you have as an officer in the Navy.

On the ground, as a Navy officer, you work with and supervise today's most highly skilled aviation professionals. In the air, as part of the naval aviation team, you have about the most exciting job anyone can have.

It's a uniquely rewarding job with pay to match. You start at $18,300 a year —more than the average corporation pays you just out of college. After four years, with regular Navy promotions and pay increases, your annual salary climbs to $31,100. That's over and above a full package of benefits and privileges.

Find out how much more a job in naval aviation has to offer. Fill in the coupon. No other job gives you the kind of leadership experience or fast responsibility you get as part of the naval aviation team. And nothing else feels like Navy flying.
