Palestinians deserve rights

(Continued from page 5) side. Repeatedly since 1974, the PLO has demonstrated its willingness to accept the establishment of a Palestinian state in the occupied territories. In November 1974, Arafat declared that the PLO would "accept political solutions," and would "go for de facto recognition to the State of Israel." (Dudlal Alkrenz, 11/5/82) In 1981, the PLO National Council unanimously endorsed a Soviet proposal which included the following statement: "It is essential to secure the security and sovereignty of all states of the region including those of Israel." Recall also the Sadat peace initiative in 1971 and 1977, the fact that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires, and the fact that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires and that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires and that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires and that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires and that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires and that, until the June 6, 1967 invasion of Lebanon, the PLO had respected the ceasefires.

As for the third aspect of Arab rejectionism, "the unwillingness to acknowledge that Jews have rights," it is clear that Zussman and those who share his position are most concerned with preserving Israel's "right" to absolute political and military supremacy in the region. Materially, it is the Palestinians who have been stripped of their most basic rights. To be states in today's world is to be virtually nonexistent. No Committee on the Middle East

The Committee on the Middle East is deeply concerned about the issue of racism. Unfortunately, the prejudices so clearly epitomized in Zechara's letter are quite widespread. They form the foundation of US policy in the Middle East and have defined the scope and nature of discourse on Middle East issues in the US media. As Americans, we are deeply implicated in the events that have taken place as a result of our government's overwhelming and unflagging support of Israel. It is, therefore, crucial for us to examine the biases shaping our attitudes, to educate ourselves as broadly as possible on these issues, and to press our government to take a more principled position, one which reflects a commitment to preserving the human and civil rights of all peoples in the Middle East.

Maggie Browning, Committee on the Middle East

Peter S. Katz, D.D.S.
* Quality Dental Care
* Personal Comfort
* Relax with Video-Sedation
* Evening, Saturday Hours
839 Massachusetts Ave
516-1016 Cambridge 02139

Stanley R. Kaplan
The Smart MOVE!

Classes Starting Now For JUNE
GMAT - LSAT - GRE

KAPLAN

Sharon to provoke the PLO to a response that could be used to support the US's position, and the immediate and unconditional rejection of the Reagan plan by Israel. Clearly, the US should have directed its efforts at flexibility to the Israeli government which, under both Labor and Likud, has never wavered from its own version of rejectionism, i.e., no negotiations with the PLO, no autonomous Palestinian state of any kind, no equal rights for Palestinians under any circumstances.

For the US, the Israeli government's rejectionism is a strategic tool in its attempt to isolate the PLO from the world. For the PLO, it is a means of reinforcing its position on the world stage. The Committee on the Middle East is deeply concerned about the issue of racism. Unfortunately, the prejudices so clearly epitomized in Zechara's letter are quite widespread. They form the foundation of US policy in the Middle East and have defined the scope and nature of discourse on Middle East issues in the US media. As Americans, we are deeply implicated in the events that have taken place as a result of our government's overwhelming and unflagging support of Israel. It is, therefore, crucial for us to examine the biases shaping our attitudes, to educate ourselves as broadly as possible on these issues, and to press our government to take a more principled position, one which reflects a commitment to preserving the human and civil rights of all peoples in the Middle East.

Maggie Browning, Committee on the Middle East

Debra Winger is terrific.
John O'Shea, UNHOSPITALIZED, ABC, 4/7/71

"Debra Winger is terrific." Debra Winger is terrific.

"★★★★ A first-rate movie. A classic chiller."
Bob Hillyer, USA TODAY

"Jim Bridges draws a dynamic performance from Debra Winger."
Alan Rich, L.A. TIMES

Web Rees, L.A. TIMES

Debra Winger
MIKE'S MURDER

The mystery that led her into a world of incredible danger.

A JAMES BRIDGES Film
MIKE'S MURDER

Debra Winger, Mark Kylloen, Darrell Larson, and Paul Winfield as Philip
Executive Producer RIKU KUMAI, ASSOCIATE PRODUCER JACK LARSON. Music by JOHN BARON
Based on the play by DEE ALLEN, T. C. and E. PHILIP BROOK. Director of Photography KENNAN YELLABROS
Written and Directed by JAMES BRIDGES

NOW PLAYING

CAMBRIDGE

ABC-TV

The Tech