Prayer in the classroom would benefit our society

Framingham voters recently rejected by a narrow margin a proposal to establish religious instruction in public schools there. The prayer is exactly what all school systems in this country need. It acknowledges that men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator, with certain inalienable rights, including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Were students to pray this, or even to pray at all in the classroom, we would not face as many social ills as we do now. Why do high school students offerResistance to the Lord Jesus Christ, faith to their Master — consider the medieval popes. The influence of that power, and the state benefits who drifted away.

It is unfortunate that this country is not ready for such complete worship, for the re-wound would be great. Too many fear their children will be corruped for not worshiping the way their classmates do. No true follower of Jesus would act toward others in this way, but they are few true followers of Jesus.

Recent debate on school prayer allows many people to disrespect God. Many say we should not violate a supposed separation of church and state. The separation is an invention of man. God created the church and the state as one and the same; it was man created the church and the state, but

The influence of the material world, indeed, has overcome the influence of the Lord for many. Some people seem not to care about their souls, hoping in vain that some kind of "good works" will save them. It is they who say school prayer is not needed because people can worship on Sundays; that man's theories about the origins of the world and of universe are superior to God's;

America's mediocrity about religious is obvious from the pagan worship of Santa Claus, trees and rabbits, and even ofativity games, which are now considered "secular." Is church attendance on Christmas and Easter — or even every Sunday — enough to guarantee salvation? Many people would like to believe so.

Before We Put You In Charge Of The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Equipment, We Put You Through The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Training.

It takes more than 16 months of intensive training to become a fully qualified officer in the Nuclear Navy. You begin with four months of leadership training. Then as a Navy officer you get a full year of graduate-level training unavailable anywhere else at any price. Navy training is based on more than 1900 years of human experience. Right now the Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. And the Navy's nuclear equipment is the most sophisticated in the world. That's why your Navy training is and must be the most sophisticated in the world.

As an officer in the Nuclear Navy, you have decision-making authority immediately. You get important management responsibility fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so does your responsibility. Your training and experience place you among the country's most highly qualified professionals. (No surprise to you but to most others you know we have to say it.)

The rewards can begin as early as your junior year in college. Qualify, and the Navy will pay you approximately $1000/month while you finish school.

After four years, with regular promotions and salary increases, you can be earning as much as $40,500. That's on top of a benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned every year. More responsibility, more money, more future. So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, and you want to know more about a future in nuclear power, fill in the coupon below.

Today's Nuclear Navy is an opportunity like no other in the world.

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.