Tubes concert theft was called "inside job"

Last spring, $6500 in receipts from the April 22 Spring Week-end Tubes concert disappeared from the Student Center Committee's office safe. The money, which consisted of $5300 in cash and $1200 in checks, had been placed in the safe immediately after the event. However, the theft was not noticed until two weeks after the event was over.

Police did not assign a priority to the theft until a second theft occurred in early September. The second theft involved the loss of approximately $15,000 in cash from the SCC's bookkeeper office.

"It's not too surprising," said R. Henneberry, HIT insurance service representative for the time being, said Thomas Vogeli.

The theft occurred after a group of students broke into the SCC's office safe. The money, which consisted of $5300 in cash and $1200 in checks, had been placed in the safe immediately after the event. However, the theft was not noticed until two weeks after the event was over.

"We are not sure whether the theft was an inside job," said Thomas Vogeli. "However, we are not taking any chances. We are already planning to install a new safe in the SCC's office."

Academic Council grants ODSA request for two new positions

By Ronald W. Norman

The Academic Council Tuesday approved a request to create and fill two new positions: full-time faculty advisor and campus activities director.

Deans for Student Affairs Shirley L. McBay presented a "search plan" for a replacements for two key positions in the council. The full-time faculty advisor position will directly replace Immerman, assuming his salary and location.

The request follows Immerman's move from the office of the dean for student affairs to the residence department.

Two years ago, when Assistant Dean Robert Holdren retired, the position of residence advisor and student activities advisor were combined.

The person hired to this position will be concerned with room and scheduling in the residence halls. A. Stratton '23 Student Center, Kresge Auditorium, the MIT Chapel, and the Francis Ames Wallace Memorial Building.

"There are a lot of issues relating to student space," McBay said.

Before Immerman left the office of the dean for student affairs, he met with Institute Vice President and Provost John P. Smith and President William G. McBay to discuss what was needed to effectively fill his position, McBay said.

The group decided that a full-time advisor to residences and independent living groups was needed, as well as two positions to handle student activities, Sherwood said.

"We were not meeting some of the needs of students," Sherwood said, "and Immerman, who had been the ODSA advisor to fraternity and independent living groups, assumed the new positions.

"It was an impossible chore to ask anybody to do," said Robert A. Sherwood, associate dean for student affairs.

Next week, McBay will make another proposal to the Academic Council regarding approval of another position. This position, which has not yet been given a title, will involve work with the Deans' Office and Physical Plant with regard to allocations and maintenance of space needs. Eventually, in the future, the position will replace Immerman, assuming his salary and location.

The request follows Immerman's move from the office of the dean for student affairs to the residence department.

"It was an impossible chore to ask anybody to do," said Robert A. Sherwood, associate dean for student affairs. "We were not meeting some of the needs of students," Sherwood said, "and Immerman, who had been the ODSA advisor to fraternity and independent living groups, assumed the new positions."

"We are not sure whether the theft was an inside job," said Thomas Vogeli. "However, we are not taking any chances. We are already planning to install a new safe in the SCC's office."

Academic Council grants ODSA request for two new positions

By Ronald W. Norman

The MIT Campus Police have charged Kenneth E. Dumas, president of the Office of Student Affairs, with two counts of larceny for misappropriation of funds from the Student Center Committee over the past two years, according to James Olivieri, chief of Campus Police.

Oliveri said that a special working group was formed to look into the possibility of a theft at the SCC. The working group included representatives of the Student Center Committee, the Office of the Dean for Student Affairs, and the Interfraternity Conference, and the Office of the President of MIT.

The committee screened resumes from 60 candidates, eliminated four, and recommended 20 people to the SCC Committee.

"There is obviously a budget impact of both men and women; the Student Center Committee generally promotes a positive attitude toward social services."

Academic Council grants ODSA request for two new positions

By Ronald W. Norman

The MIT Campus Police have charged Kenneth E. Dumas, president of the Office of Student Affairs, with two counts of larceny for misappropriation of funds from the Student Center Committee over the past two years, according to James Olivieri, chief of Campus Police.

Oliveri said that a special working group was formed to look into the possibility of a theft at the SCC. The working group included representatives of the Student Center Committee, the Office of the Dean for Student Affairs, and the Interfraternity Conference, and the Office of the President of MIT.

The committee screened resumes from 60 candidates, eliminated four, and recommended 20 people to the SCC Committee.

The Academic Council Tuesday approved a request to create and fill two new positions: full-time faculty advisor and campus activities director.

Deans for Student Affairs Shirley L. McBay presented a "search plan" for a replacements for two key positions in the council. The full-time faculty advisor position will directly replace Immerman, assuming his salary and location.

The request follows Immerman's move from the office of the dean for student affairs to the residence department.

Two years ago, when Assistant Dean Robert Holdren retired, the position of residence advisor and student activities advisor were combined.

The person hired to this position will be concerned with room and scheduling in the residence halls. A. Stratton '23 Student Center, Kresge Auditorium, the MIT Chapel, and the Francis Ames Wallace Memorial Building.

"There are a lot of issues relating to student space," McBay said.

Before Immerman left the office of the dean for student affairs, he met with Institute Vice President and Provost John P. Smith and President William G. McBay to discuss what was needed to effectively fill his position, McBay said.

The group decided that a full-time advisor to residences and independent living groups was needed, as well as two positions to handle student activities, Sherwood said.

"We were not meeting some of the needs of students," Sherwood said, "and Immerman, who had been the ODSA advisor to fraternity and independent living groups, assumed the new positions.

"It was an impossible chore to ask anybody to do," said Robert A. Sherwood, associate dean for student affairs.

Next week, McBay will make another proposal to the Academic Council regarding approval of another position. This position, which has not yet been given a title, will involve work with the Deans' Office and Physical Plant with regard to allocations and maintenance of space needs. Eventually, in the future, the position will replace Immerman, assuming his salary and location.

The request follows Immerman's move from the office of the dean for student affairs to the residence department.

"It was an impossible chore to ask anybody to do," said Robert A. Sherwood, associate dean for student affairs. "We were not meeting some of the needs of students," Sherwood said, "and Immerman, who had been the ODSA advisor to fraternity and independent living groups, assumed the new positions."

Academic Council grants ODSA request for two new positions

By Ronald W. Norman

The Academic Council Tuesday approved a request to create and fill two new positions: full-time faculty advisor and campus activities director.

Deans for Student Affairs Shirley L. McBay presented a "search plan" for a replacements for two key positions in the council. The full-time faculty advisor position will directly replace Immerman, assuming his salary and location.

The request follows Immerman's move from the office of the dean for student affairs to the residence department.

Two years ago, when Assistant Dean Robert Holdren retired, the position of residence advisor and student activities advisor were combined.