Rowers seek US team spots

By Diana Ben-Aaron

Three MIT oarswomen have been invited to try out for the US National Lightweight Team, and one may be an alternate for the US Olympic team.

Laura MacGinitie G, Linda Mast '85, Susan Stovall '86, and Linda Mar '85 (coxswain) will be competing for national team places at US lightweight camp in New Hampshire this summer. The national team will compete in the world championships at Montreal in August.

Elizabeth Bradley G was invited to the Olympic trials after an MIT crew stroked won the Smith Cup from defending champion Boston University. Bradley has been in Olympic training camp at Princeton since May 14, and "she hasn't been cut yet," according to MIT women's varsity crew coach Mayrene Earle.

As eight, a four, and a pair have already been chosen from the thirty hopefuls, most of whom have been training together for four years, Earle said. Bradley is one of four remaining rowers from whom a pair of spares will be chosen, she said.

"Two of the others have chosen to row together, and the third has decided to row with someone outside the group. Now Liz has to find a rowing partner in order to stay in the running for the backup pair," Earle noted. The Olympic rowing trials will be held in Princeton in August.
