McBay did not refuse to serve on committee

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for the well-written article in your last issue ("LSC to follow ODSA policies on sexually explicit films," September 4). However, there was one error, but it was my fault. I had said that I had asked Dean Shirley McBay if she wanted to be on the new committee, and she said no. In fact, I had asked her if she wanted to chair the committee, and it was to this that she said no. I apologize to Dean McBay and everyone else...

Student appalled by "mutilation" of trees

To the Editor:

I left here before the summer started, wondering how the Amherst Alley renovation would turn out when I returned in the fall. I returned early for a visit and was shocked at what I saw in progress. Two of MIT's rather precious resources, two beautiful old trees, had been decapitated, mutilated, and altogether disfigured. A similar treatment befell a few hundred feet of rather attractive tall hedges, which also ended up revealing rather ugly, unattractive tall stumps. I hope it will not be repeated.

I am appalled.

The Tech's opinion pages exist to provide a forum for commentary on issues of concern to the MIT community—not only the views of the editorial board or individual staff members, but also the opinions of members of the broader MIT community. The Tech endeavors to print all letters to the editor, contributing to discussion of issues relevant to the community. Letters written to promote specific events or activities are not printed. The opinion pages are not a bulletin board for free advertising by groups or individuals. Comments on the coverage, content, or editorial position of the newspaper are encouraged. In no instance does The Tech refuse to print a letter because the editorial board does not agree with the author's views. Letters violating standards of decency and appropriate, however, are not published. All submissions should be typed, double spaced, and bear the authors' signatures. Unsigned letters will not be printed, but authors' names may be withheld at the editor's discretion upon request.
