Randy Winchester of MIT Cable TV is looking for volunteers who would be interested in founding a new activity to program channels on the cable system. Possible programming could include Arts and Entertainment, live coverage of campus events, student projects, or classic films. Suggestions would be welcome. Those interested should contact Randy Winchester at x7431, Room 9030.

Seniors who wish to apply for graduate work in the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science should apply by November 1, 1984. Applications may be picked up in Rooms 3644 or 3-103.

The MIT Speech and Debate Society is sponsoring a Fall Speech Contest. Winners will receive cash. We are now canvassing the MIT student community for的兴趣 and suggestions. If you have the slightest interest in talking for fun and profit, call Lisa x7492, Nick x6372, or Mer- ry x6324, or Christine x8160.

The MIT Cable TV is looking for surplus equipment and used supplies, including floor tile, used room- frame supports $15, used room- chair $110, smaller sofa chair $40, large sofa $90, etc. Call evenings 3540177, 491-5539.

The Christian Science Monitor is sponsoring an essay contest challenging its readers to come up with possible scenarios that could lead to world peace in the next 25 years. Students and faculty at colleges and universities around the country are also invited to participate. Participants might consider such factors as economic conditions, the role of moral leadership, and world armaments. Entries will be judged on the feasibility of the ideas they contain.
