LSC could face protests against March 2 pornographic screening meetings unless specifically invited, he said.

Dan Helman, G raised the question of whether movies would be reviewed quickly enough.

"We could also do more than one (film) a meeting," committee member Niti Seth said, suggesting that some movies could be voted on after being viewed for 45 minutes.

After 45 minutes, one could "see a general trend and distinct lack of plot," said Strong, speaking of the movies that failed LSC's internal screening procedure.

The general consensus of the committee was that the movies should be reviewed all the way through.

The possibility of groups beside LSC wanting to submit movies to the committee was also brought up at the meeting.

The Student Center Committee currently has "midnight movies" slots open on April 6 and 20.

"Right now we have not submitted any title to the pornography screening committee. Nor have we at this time chosen any titles to be submitted," said SCC Chairman Marc Rene '85, who was not at the meeting. Brine would not disallow the possibility of SCC showing a sexually explicit film on either of these two dates.

In order to make the six-week deadline for showing a sexually explicit film not approved by the ad hoc committee, SCC's selections would have to be reviewed at the Feb. 11 meeting.

The committee is scheduled to meet on the second Monday of each month, from 3 to 5 pm. Meetings will be open to the public, although "as a committee I assure we will not have an executive session if we have to," said Hildebrand.
