Plane disaster in Japan — Over 500 are believed dead in what is possibly the worst airplane crash in history. Japan Airlines Flight 123 was out of control for about a half-hour. According to eyewitnesses, the last moments of the flight were quite erratic; the plane climbed and dived rapidly. Japan's rescue efforts have been hampered by the terrain.

Derivative of Bhopal toxin leaks from plant — A toxic cloud of alkaloid alanol, a chemical used in pesticides, leaked from a Union Carbide plant in West Virginia, Sunday morning. At least 120 people were treated for eye and respiratory irritation. The escaped gas is a less dangerous derivative of methyl isocyante, the chemical that killed over 2000 people and injured 200,000 when it leaked from a Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India, last December. After the Bhopal accident, the West Virginia plant was shut down and a $5 million computerized safety system installed, the plant reopened three months ago. The Environmental Protection Agency decided to its operations would not pose a threat to nearby residents.

Chemical warfare receives a new boost — A new chemical bomb and artillery shell are part of a $1.5 million project authorized by a House-Senate conference on Sunday to replace old nerve gas stockpiles. A new nerve gas program will derive funding from a $502.5 million military programs bill, pending House approval. If the bill is passed, chemical weapons will resume production for the first time in sixteen years.
