MIT outshoots Amcats

By Alison C. Morgan

The women's basketball team displayed its strength in a tilt against Amcats Feb. 16 at the Memorial Hockey Rink. The Engineers scored 65 points against Amcats 48, 14 more than the closest game this season. Earlier this season, MIT defeated Amcats 72-48. The Amcats were led by the scores of Sue Pfeiffer '86 with 17, Kim Cooper '87 with 13, and Claudia Burns '86 with 12. Claudia Burns led the team in rebounds with 8. Kim Cooper was the top scorer with 21 points. The game started on a high note with MIT scoring the first 7 points of the game. The Amcats began to claw away at the score, taking it to 10-14, but MIT pulled ahead, 10-14, but solid blocking and digging pulled MIT back into the game. The Engineers emerged victorious 16-14.

Squash squishes Columbia

By Alison C. Morgan

In a surprisingly decisive victory, the Engineers defeated the Columbia men's team 3-0 Feb. 16 at the Vienna Estate. The Engineers also defeated Penn 7-3 on Saturday and Brown 6-1 on Sunday. The Engineers are now 3-0 in conference play and 15-6 overall.

Dartmouth spikes men's volleyball

By Michael Resler

The MIT men's volleyball team began its 1986 season on a down note Saturday, dropping a best of five match to Dartmouth 15-8, 14-16, 15-13, 15-9, 15-9. MIT began the first game very strongly as serve receiver Young Soo Ha and Armando Hernandez '86, needed two points to settle down. The team fell behind 10-6 before making a comeback, winning by six. MIT fell behind 14-16 in the second game, but Ha and Hernandez rallied the Engineers, winning the next four points. Ha and Hernandez won the third game, 15-9. MIT started strong in the fourth game, leading 14-6, but Dartmouth pulled ahead, 14-16. Dartmouth extended its lead to 5-11, but MIT fought back, taking the next four points. Dartmouth led 10-11, but MIT took the final three points to win the game 15-11.

When you work for The Tech, there’s no guarantee that you’ll become the next president of MIT. But then again…

(J. R. Killian '26)

Paul E. Gray '54