The MIT men's hockey team continued a three game winning streak Wednesday night, defeating the Huskies of the University of Southern Maine 6-4. The teams played neck and neck for most of the first period, with Alex Jessiman '88 scoring the opening goal for MIT after ten minutes of play. With less than two minutes to go in the period, USM scored twice in 30 seconds, giving them the lead, 2-1.

The USM lead did not last long, as Dave Koch '86 — with his first goal of the season — tied the score 15 seconds later. His goal was also the highest of the season. With 4:38 remaining, the Engineers came on strong with a 6-5 overtime victory over the University of Vermont Saturday. MIT scored 15 seconds later. Jim Rutherford '87 and Jessiman each scored two goals and assistant coach Frank Menzo called the upcoming game "our biggest meet of the season and repaid RIC for its most spectacular maneuvers are double back flips on floor, rings, and high bar, and a piked Tkatchev vault.
