Protesters march on President's House

(Continued from page 1)

110 Memorial Drive was barely lit when the protesters arrived. "Paul Gray, you can't hide. We know you're on apartheid's side," they chanted.

Two Campus Police officers accompanied the protesters, while another pair met the crowd at the Seelie House entrance. Five more stood in the driveway of the President's House, backed by several Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) police.

A Tufts student urged the demonstrators to boycott corporations doing business in South Africa. Students should not buy International Business Machines (IBM) computers, Coca-Cola products or Pepsi Cola beverages, he said.

Behind the crowd, one of the MDC officers spoke into his walkie-talkie: "Cancel the SWAT team and K-9 unit." Arnold Contreras '86 said he had met with Gray on Feb. 13 to discuss demands for divestment and an increase in minority enrollment. Gray responded by saying he would do everything he could to help, she said.

"True leadership is seeing where the bulk of activity is," Dickson said. "This is the most honored platform MIT only permits leafleting on. The tape was removed very early Sunday morning, Dickson explained, because the workers wanted to adhere to the policy [of leafleting] and were very vigorous. MIT only permits leafleting on the first floor because "that is the tape was for the divestment struggle." Several felt it was a provocation for the Technology Community Association blood drive.

"The issue has been studied to death," Npefa said. "There has to be a policy when you say, 'Hell stop! Let's act.' "

"If on nothing else there is consensus of the coalition steering committee, read from a letter in which the Undergraduate Association endorsed divestment, Npefa said. "The tape was removed very early Sunday morning, Dickson explained, because the workers wanted to adhere to the policy [of leafleting] and were very vigorous. MIT only permits leafleting on the first floor because "that is the tape was for the divestment struggle." Several felt it was a provocation for the Technology Community Association blood drive.

\[\text{Tech photos by Stephen P. Ronsack}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by David M. Watson}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]

\[\text{Tech photo by Terry Higgins}\]