Activists bring protest to Corporation

Demonstrators challenge Gray

By Andrew L. Fish
Over 100 anti-apartheid demonstrators confronted President Paul E. Gray '54 outside his house at 111 Memorial Drive last Friday in an attempt to speak with the Corporation about divestment from South Africa. The President's decision to refuse the students access to the house has prompted protests from MIT students against Gray's tenure policy.

Moscov, Thomas stand administrative red tape on their achievements

By Anna Volokhovskaya
The Daily News Service, Cambridge, MA 02139

If you're not having fun, you're doing something wrong! To the retrospect of the University of Minnesota, it's a way of life. But to the students at the University of Minnesota, it's a question of education. The University of Minnesota has been criticized for its strict policies on student conduct, especially regarding political activity. The Daily News Service, Cambridge, MA 02139, is a student-run newspaper that covers local and national news. While the University of Minnesota is known for its high academic standards, the recent controversy over its policies on student conduct has raised questions about the university's commitment to free speech and political expression. The Daily News Service reported on the situation, highlighting the perspectives of both students and faculty members. The newspaper's coverage provides insight into the ongoing debate over the role of the university in shaping the political environment on campus.