US jets attack Libyan cities

By Harold A. Ickes

The United States launched a military air attack on Libya on April 15. Last night in retaliation for recent attacks on Americans in the Middle East, the US had "highly reliable" evidence linking American terrorist facilities and military operations in Libya.

The US launched the air assault on Libya after the Libyan government announced this week.

The attack was aimed at Tripoli, the Libyan capital, and the city of Benghazi. Speakes said. According to him, the US had "highly reliable" evidence linking Libya to the attack.

The Libyan state claimed that the US had struck Libyan targets. Speakes said. According to him, the attack was in response to recent attacks on American interests in the Middle East.

There is no conclusive evidence linking Libya to the attack. Speakes said.
