Reagan signs immigration bill

President Reagan signed a major immigration bill that will allow millions of previously illegal aliens to become legal residents of this country. Under the measure, aliens who have lived in the United States since before 1982 can eventually become permanent residents. Officials do not know how many people fall into that category, but the number has been estimated in the millions. (AP)

Election turnout is low

Voter turnout on Tuesday was just over 37 percent of the nation's voting age population, according to the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate. That is the lowest level in 46 years. Voters were showing their disapproval of the negative tactic used in the 1986 campaign, the committee asserted. (AP)

USA plans aircraft agreement with China

United States companies will develop equipment for China's F-8 fighters in accordance with a $500 million dollar plan, a US defense official said yesterday. A letter of intent was signed in Washington last month, and the project is expected to last six years, he added. (AP)

Spassky foiled

Calling their move "pure greed," a federal judge in Baltimore sentenced two principals in the John Walker spy ring to stiff prison sentences. Spysky John Walker received life imprisonment while his son Michael got a 25-year prison term. The judge promised to recommend that the pair not be eligible for parole. Walker headed a spy ring that sold US Navy secrets to the Soviets for 17 years. (AP)

GM to close plants employing 29,000

The nation's number one automaker calls it the first phase of its reorganization and modernization program. Laying off workers, General Motors announced yesterday that it will close eleven plants over the next three years. The operations employed 29,000 people in Michigan, Ohio, Missouri, and Illinois. The company said closed plants would result in $338 million in losses. (AP)
