ENGELHARD IS COMING TO MIT!

Engelhard helps make many of the products we use everyday even though the company name doesn't appear on most of them. Engelhard products and technologies help make the cars we drive, clothing we wear, food we eat, homes and offices and plants where we live and work, telephones and computers that make us connected. Engelhard is known as a Performance Products company. And why technology is so important is that it can help us achieve goals that seem impossible today. It is the science that is critical to the development of new products and services. It is the science that is critical to the future. Engelhard is committed to providing solutions.