US military defends the freedoms of its citizens

To the Editor:

Though not really surprised, I am dismayed by the recent portrayal of the US military as a monolithic entity. I develop organizations eager to "subjugate people to totalitarian regimes" in the opinion pages of The Tech. I served in the Air Force from 1982 to 1986. I know that the US military is not a monolithic entity. I know that the US military defends the freedoms of its citizens.

The armed forces stand ready to protect our country and all students across the country. The US military will not be further discussed.

Robert S. Wolf G

On-campus arts should come first

To the Editor:

I was hoping that today's issue of The Tech (Friday, March 20) would have a review of the MIT Symphony Orchestra Concert of Saturday, March 14, but I was sadly disappointed.

The performance last Saturday in Kresge of the Mahler Symphony No. 1 was the best the MIT Symphony has performed in the five and one half years I have been at MIT. Guest conductor Alan Cohn sensitively got the most out of the orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

This concert especially deviated from the usual repertoire because the orchestra was the only orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

Robert S. Wolf G

(Reviewer's note: The Tech received a letter to the Editor from this student.)

To Whom It May Concern:

Enclosed you will find a check in the amount of $50 to fulfill my request to contribute to an Association of Alumni MIT Scholarship Fund. This contribution ranks the fifth consecutive year I have given money to MIT since graduation in 1982.

It will, however, be my last donation to MIT. With the sale of my portfolio of stocks and my withdrawal in business in South Africa, until then, I will do all I can to offset the contributions to the MIT Endowment for Diversi-

I did not make this decision lightly. I knew when I began con-

The performance last Saturday in Kresge of the Mahler Symphony No. 1 was the best the MIT Symphony has performed in the five and one half years I have been at MIT. Guest conductor Alan Cohn sensitively got the most out of the orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

This concert especially deviated from the usual repertoire because the orchestra was the only orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

Robert S. Wolf G

To Whom It May Concern:

Enclosed you will find a check in the amount of $50 to fulfill my request to contribute to an Association of Alumni MIT Scholarship Fund. This contribution ranks the fifth consecutive year I have given money to MIT since graduation in 1982.

It will, however, be my last donation to MIT. With the sale of my portfolio of stocks and my withdrawal in business in South Africa, until then, I will do all I can to offset the contributions to the MIT Endowment for Diversi-

I did not make this decision lightly. I knew when I began con-

The performance last Saturday in Kresge of the Mahler Symphony No. 1 was the best the MIT Symphony has performed in the five and one half years I have been at MIT. Guest conductor Alan Cohn sensitively got the most out of the orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

This concert especially deviated from the usual repertoire because the orchestra was the only orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

Robert S. Wolf G

To Whom It May Concern:

Enclosed you will find a check in the amount of $50 to fulfill my request to contribute to an Association of Alumni MIT Scholarship Fund. This contribution ranks the fifth consecutive year I have given money to MIT since graduation in 1982.

It will, however, be my last donation to MIT. With the sale of my portfolio of stocks and my withdrawal in business in South Africa, until then, I will do all I can to offset the contributions to the MIT Endowment for Diversi-

I did not make this decision lightly. I knew when I began con-

The performance last Saturday in Kresge of the Mahler Symphony No. 1 was the best the MIT Symphony has performed in the five and one half years I have been at MIT. Guest conductor Alan Cohn sensitively got the most out of the orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.

This concert especially deviated from the usual repertoire because the orchestra was the only orchestra, and the results were musically satisfying. The orchestra also performed the Beethoven Piano Concert No. 5 and did a fine job of supporting the piano soloist. I believe audiences are enriched by exposure to the arts, and I hope in the future you will try to review student concerts before another student activity over a string quartet concert, or a large number of MIT students.