MIT golf team takes fourth place

By Rich Chlebozki

A great performance in the New England Division III Championship gave the MIT golf team a fourth place finish out of 41 New England Division I, II, and III teams. This was the highest finish ever for MIT.

Chris Craig '89 came to the fore in this one. Barely making the five-man team in a playoff with Chris Dailloirth '87, Craig produced 82-74-156 for a sixth place finish in this one. Barely making the playoff with Pat Kenary '87 and Rich Chlebozki '87 made up the rest of the team.

The entire team was selected to attend the NCAA Division III Championship to represent District I, for the first time in golf history at MIT.

The team also scored a 3rd place finish in the Greater Boston Tournament this season. Brent Beadling '90 led the way in this one. Barely making the playoff with Pat Kenary of Harvard on the 3rd hole to give MIT only its 2nd GBC Champion in the tournament's 27 year history. Aisel, who was in 1983, was a runner-up this year with 76.

Aisel won the top award given in college golf in New England by the Guy Tedesco Award, presented at the New England Intercollegiate Tournament, Aisel, with 77, and Chlebozki, with 79, led the way.
