WELCOME TO YOUR NEW MIT COOP

The Coop began in 1912 when a group of students agreed to sell used books and furniture at discounted prices to fellow students and distribute the store’s earned profits among its members. As part of the oldest and largest cooperative bookstores in the country, the MIT Coop has proudly served the MIT academic and neighboring business communities for the past 75 years. Our move this past May to a bigger store at Kendall shows the Coop’s commitment to meeting the changing needs of the entire community.

The Coop is governed by a board of 23 directors, consisting of 11 faculty and alumni, 11 students from the MIT, Harvard, and Kendall communities, and the Coop’s president.

COOP MEMBERSHIP

Today the Coop has over 100,000 members. As an MIT affiliate (alumni, employee, alumni) you are automatically eligible to become a Coop member in return for a yearly membership fee of $1.

COOP CHARGE ACCOUNTS

Credit charge and cash only accounts are available to members, good at any of our 6 locations. All members are assigned a membership number, used to keep computerized records of their total Coop purchases for the year.

ANNUAL PATRONAGE REBATE

The Coop is unique in that as a Cooperative it makes patronage rebates to its members. Last year the Coop’s rebate was 9.2% of each member’s purchases made at any one of the 6 Coop locations: the MIT Coop at Kendall, Harvard Square, the Coop of Longwood, Downtown Coop, the Business School Coop and Law School Coop.
