Frosh deserve to know what happens during Rush Week

with them. Most of the froshmen I've met over the three Rush Weeks I've seen at the fraternities were acting like themselves. The frosh were guilty, if at all, only of making somewhat nervous attempts at conversation in a foreign environment.

Further, for those froshmen who are interested in a fraternity, the night meetings at fraternities is an opportunity for them to visit four or five houses they do visit in order to better acquaint themselves with the residents. This is certainly a wise recommendation and, I hope, one that many people do follow.

Perhaps the skit itself was in poor taste. I did not see it, so I don't know, but I did hear many comments about it during Rush Week. I don't think it can be convincingly proved that the skit alone was responsible for the lack of freshmen pledging fraternities. Forcing Rush to be a complete mystery, however, misleads students about what the Institute is like and assumes a level of intelligence and maturity on the part of the froshmen far below what they possess.

With all this in mind, I'd like to publish what I believe is the truth and the consequences of Rush Week.

"No, I've never lost a term paper because of disk error. But then, I've always used Sony."

When it's three o'clock in the morning and you've nearly done with your term paper, the last thing you want to see on the screen is "fatal disk error."

That's why so many people insist on Sony.

One reason is that Sony invented the 3.5" floppy disk drive as well as the 3.5" floppy disks.

Another reason Sony floppies are so popular on campus is their relentless reliability. And that goes for our 5.25" floppies, too.

After all, when it comes to magnetic media, nobody's ahead of Sony. We're a world leader in audio, video and computer magnetic media.

The thing to remember about magnetic media in computers is that almost any input error can be corrected, but lost data is forever.

So, instead of learning your lesson the hard way, trust the diskettes that set the standard for the others to follow.

Use the Sony.
