A Vision Of Leadership.

Over twenty years ago, ARCO Chemical Company envi- sional themselves as a world technology and market leader. Today, we are one of the world's leading manufacturers and marketers of propi- cene oxide, butyl alcohol, styrene monomer and related intermediate and specialty chemicals used in a broad spectrum of products.

Turning vision into reality doesn't happen by itself. It requires a plan of action, sufficient financial resources to pursue global opportunities, and most importantly, the brightest and best people preparing to enter the workforce as tomorrow's leaders.

ARCO Chemical representatives will be on campus Wednesday, Septem- ber 26, 1990 for a presentation in the Chemical Engineering Bldg., 66-110, 4:30PM-6:00PM. We'd like to talk with those who will help us shape our future.

"Seeking the Leaders of Tomorrow"

By John Thompson

Two powerful, realistic, and thought-provoking approaches for dealing with the epidemic.

Living with AIDS

edited by Stephen Graubard

Living with AIDS confronts this long-term challenge through a series of powerful and thought-provoking essays that seek a more realistic public-health and public-policy environment for dealing with the AIDS epidemic.

This book goes beyond dealing with AIDS as solely a health-care problem. It analyses social and political conditions, the different populations that are affected in different parts of the world, ethical and moral issues, public attitudes and individual fears, stigma, and suffering. The book also includes a primer on epidemiology to familiarize readers with the importance of this field in the study.

AIDS Cultural Analysis

Cultural Activism

edited by Douglas Crimp

"The best available" collection of essays on what AIDS is made to mean socially and politically-in the lives of the real people coping with AIDS and HIV infection, their communities and their loved ones. The essays challenge the assumptions of AIDS education and policy and expose the tyranny of images produced by both scientific discourse and mass media.
