G O TO ILOLANTE. It's delightfully sung, well-acted, witty directed, and simply masses of fun.

The 25-year-old Strephon is half-man, half-fairy — quite a predicament to be in when your immortal fairy mother, Iolanthe, always looks like a girl of 17 and your fiancee isn't convinced that she is your father.

As the atmosphere walks through the doors of the theater, they are drawn into the story weaves between the absurd and the serious.

...and every girl that's born alive is a fairy. Paul Matthews, declaring that "every boy and every girl that's born alive is a fairy."
