Support McGeever and Kirby

Amidst the ongoing coursework, deadlines, and other engagements, it becomes increasingly challenging to find time to engage with the various issues that shape campus life. However, the recent controversy surrounding the评选 of the Undergraduate Association (UA) president and vice president has highlighted a crucial issue that we, as students, should not overlook.

The upcoming election for UA president and vice president presents an opportunity for us to shape the direction of our student organization and ensure that it represents our interests and concerns. This is particularly important given the fact that the UA is responsible for coordinating various committees and initiatives that impact the lives of MIT students.

One of the key concerns raised during the recent debate on the selection of UA leadership candidates is the issue of student representation. The candidates’ platforms and promises should be evaluated in light of their commitment to ensuring that the UA truly represents the diverse voices and perspectives of the student body.

It is essential that we, as students, take an active role in this process by carefully considering the platforms of the candidates and engaging with the issues that matter most to us. By doing so, we can help to ensure that the next UA leadership team is equipped to address the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead.

Let’s use this opportunity to collectively demand a UA that is truly reflective of the student body and to hold our leaders accountable for delivering on their promises. The future of our campus is in our hands, and we must take responsibility for shaping it to the best of our abilities.

Let’s vote for McGeever and Kirby. Let’s support candidates who prioritize student representation and engagement. Let’s work together to create a campus that is inclusive, transparent, and responsive to the needs of all students.

The difference between supporting candidates who prioritize representation and those who do not is not just about the next election cycle. It is about creating a culture of active participation and genuine commitment to the well-being of the entire student body.

The time is now to make a meaningful impact. Let’s stand up for what we believe in and vote wisely. Together, we can build a better future for MIT and its students.
