Career Opportunities in Management Consulting and Software Engineering

DFI is a management consulting firm emphasizing the use of analytic methods to structure and solve management science, engineering, policy, and strategy problems. DFI has proven expertise in a number of industries including transportation, electric and gas utilities, and environmental issues.

DFI is looking for highly motivated advanced degree candidates (M.S. and Ph.D.) in engineering, operations research, economics, mathematics, management, science, and other technical fields to contribute to our rapidly growing management consulting practice, and B.S and M.S. software engineers to contribute to our practice in custom applications development. Requirements include a strong background in the theory and application of quantitative techniques, a high degree of enthusiasm and a desire to interact with clients, and excellent written and oral communications skills.

DFI will be interviewing in the Boston area in March 1992. To request an interview, send resumes and transcripts to:
